

Ramanjit Kaur Johal Ph.D.

Professor, Department of Public Administration , Panjab University

Prof. Ramanjit Kaur Johal did her Masters' and Ph.D. (1990) in Public Administration from the Department of Public Administration, Panjab University, Chandigarh following a BA Economics (Hons) from Lady Shriram College for Women, Delhi University. Prof. Johal's areas of teaching and research interests include Public Policy and Administration including substantive aspects like agriculture policy, environment, sustainable development, empowerment of women and youth in rural societies, social policy, education, health, urban development, civil society participation and administration of NGOs. She has held various administrative positions at Panjab University, Chandigarh including Dean International Students; Director Research Promotion; two terms as Chairperson of the Department of Public Administration.

Prof. Johal's international education and research involvements include being a Co-Investigator for the UK Research Council's project "Transforming the Indian Green Revolution through Education and Empowerment for Sustainable Food Supplies (TIGRE2SS)" lead by the University of Cambridge (2018-21); Fulbright-Nehru Education Administrator Program Participant (2016), Fulbright Visiting Lecturer (2011-12), and a Shastri Applied Research Project awardee ("Livestock and Environmental Sustainability: The Case of the Indian Punjab", 2003-06). She has also been a consultant to the Commonwealth Youth Asia Center on participation of youth in governance (2010-11). She serves on various committees and boards of the government, universities, bilateral agencies, not-for-profits and research institutions in India including the Indian Institute of Public Administration, New Delhi.